NIA SEARCHES HOUSE OF KEY ACCUSED IN TN HIZB-UT-TAHRIR CASE

New Delhi, 10th October 2024

Continuing with its investigations in the case, the National Investigation Agency (NIA) on Thursday searched the house of a key arrested accused involved in the Tamil Nadu Hizb-ut-Tahrir (HuT) anti-India conspiracy.

Elaborate searches were conducted in the house of Faizul Rahman in Chennai, resulting in the seizure of several incriminating materials, including digital devices and documents.

The accused, arrested by NIA on Tuesday, was actively engaging with other arrested accused persons in the case to promote secessionism and seek military assistance from Pakistan to liberate Kashmir. The conspiracy was aimed at establishing Khilafat/Islamic rule by overthrowing the Government of India through violent Jihad.

The conspiracy involved secret meetings to spread the divisive ideology of HuT. The accused had run several campaigns throughout Tamil Nadu to promote their secessionist agenda, and had been striving to divide the people by acting against the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the country.

Further investigations in the case RC-02/2024/NIA/CHE are continuing under relevant sections of IPC and UA(P) Act.
